Preparing Beyond Woodrow Wilson High School

The Rutgers-Camden Hill Family Center for College Access hosts First Annual In-Person College and Career Fair at Woodrow Wilson High School

Camden, NJ – After nearly 18 months of virtual learning, students and their families are invited to attend a free in-person college and career fair at Woodrow Wilson High School (3100 Federal Street, Camden, NJ) for an opportunity to meet face to face with representatives from colleges, universities, trade schools, and businesses from across the region. Due to COVID-19 restrictions, students were unable to attend in-person college and career fairs in 2020. This event is a one-stop-shop that allows students to network with more than 20 colleges and businesses.

“We are excited about partnering with the Rutgers Hill Center for College Access because it gives our students an opportunity to engage with both colleges and industries in person,” said Superintendent McCombs of Camden City Schools. “We understand how important it is for our students to build these first-time connections and how building relationships will help them determine what best fits their future.”

“The Hill Family Center for College Access remains committed to supporting students in the City of Camden, and we are proud to be a trustworthy partner with the Camden City School District,” said Siatta Davis, Hill Center Program Coordinator. “We are grateful that the District is allowing us to partner with their high schools.”
