“Michael Jordan once said champions don’t become champions when they win an event, but in the hours, weeks, months and years they spend preparing for it,” said Superintendent Katrina T. McCombs, Camden City School District. “From the looks of our young men, we can see how hard they prepared for this auspicious occasion. We are proud of how hard they worked, how hard they persevered, and how elegantly they represent Woodrow Wilson High School—soon to be Eastside High. Congratulations to each of you and for the amazing things to come for all of you.”

“I commend the student athletes, coaches and Woodrow Wilson/Eastside High staff for this tremendous accomplishment,” said Camden Mayor Victor Carstarphen. “They have set the bar high and continue to build upon Camden’s rich sporting legacy. For an athlete, playing at an elite level and being part of a championship team is the pinnacle of achievement. As teammates, they have created a lifelong bond and will remember these special moments forever. These young people set a goal, worked hard, and achieved their goals. I wish them continued success and encourage them to work tirelessly and achieve the goals they set throughout life.”
